Council cancels benefit packages

By AL POST
MCN Staff Writer

The controversial benefits packages given to retiring and terminated employees in the Mayor Beverly McAnally administration were cancelled Monday night by the Romulus City Council.

As expected when the benefits issue battle began, the decision to employ only the 1990 city benefits package was approved by a 4-3 vote with Councilman Michael Prybyla joining Council members Jimmie Raspberry, William Crova and Mary Collins backing that decision.

The vote thus outlawed benefits from either the 1993 or 1995 package plan drawn up by McAnally team members. Reportedly before stepping down as mayor, McAnally terminated a number of employees (including numerous department heads) and provided them with a benefits package that reportedly would cost the city about $56,000 a year.

Parts of the package reportedly were lifetime health benefits and $50,000 in insurance benefits.

Raspberry and other council members contended the council never approved either of the later (1993 or 1995) benefits packages and hence they should be voided.

Voting against using only the 1990 benefits package were three City Council members, who had strong ties to McAnally, namely Mayor pro tem Randolph Gear and Council members William Wadsworth and Deborah Romak.

Asked by the press how many city employees or ex-employees Monday night's decision would affect, Mayor William Oakley said "the number is still undecided, but there will be a lotta, lotta people involved."

Oakley speculated that it would take months to sort out all benefits passed out to determine which needed to be altered or disallowed.

A number of lawsuits against the city are expected in coming months.

The only former employee mentioned to date officially has been Herman Johnson, a long term city inspector, who thought he had successfully retired from the city last November.

Johnson however was called back to work recently by Oakley to "make sure he had a job and his benefits intact," the mayor said.

Several council members asked Oakley if he would sit down and talk to Johnson to settle the issue.

Oakley said he couldn't guarantee such a meeting would be helpful, since "I feel Johnson's (retirement) negotiation (with McAnally) was not legal. Johnson however feels it is."

The mayor explained "most people don't realize what good friends Herman and I were before this issue arose in recent months. But unfortunately I have become the bad guy in this matter, since I have to stand up for local residents and all city employees.

Raspberry told citizen speaker Sherry Hicks "you're barking at the wrong mayor. Mayor Oakley inherited this problem."

Prybyla said he hoped that the Johnson benefits issue could be settled separately from the other employees' issues.

Oakley reaffirmed that even the union that Johnson was a former member of agreed ini-

Airport limousine service vote due today

By AL POST
MCN Staff Writer

A vote is planned today on whether the Wayne County Commissioners will extend the controversial five-year contract of Metro Cars, the limousine service now serving the Metropolitan Airport.

The vote could give the limousine service another exclusive rights package, similar to one Metro Cars obtained in 1990. That contract expired this past January.

It Metro Cars is awarded the pact, the firm would then return about $100,000 to Wayne County.

County Commissioner Bruce Patterson, (R-Canton) who represents Romulus as well as other nearby communities, said he is still undecided on his vote due today,

"Rumors are abounding on how Metro Cars first obtained its contract and we all know the firm does have a track record we are continuing to check out."

- Bruce Patterson
County Commissioner

but is leaning on voting in opposition to the plan.

Patterson said Tuesday that he is concerned over any exclusive contracts and non-bidding pacts okayed by Wayne County such as the limousine issue. The county commissioner also said "rumors are abounding on how Metro Cars first obtained its contract and we all know the firm does have a track record we are continuing to check out."

Other commissioners including William O'Neill (D-Alton Park) would prefer to see the contracts be bidded out so that other companies could take part.

At least one other limousine firm spokesperson said his company would definitely bid higher than Metro Cars if allowed to compete.

O'Neill (in a recent press release) said a County Audit Committee last summer revealed Metro Cars was both late with its payments to the county and added vehicles to its fleet without informing the commission (thus avoiding extra fees).

Another Commissioner Edward Boike Jr. (D-Trenton) chortled as to who Metro Cars could be afraid of if they are really the best company available.

Commissioner Thaddeus McCotter (R-Livonia) also asks why the contract should be open to only one firm.

But Commissioner Michelle Plawewski (D-Dearborn Heights), who chairs the county's Roads, Airports and Public Safety Committee that sent the issue to the full commission, claimed the commission does not always ask for bids on the renewal of pacts.

The commission meeting begins today at 10 a.m.

Couple complains mail being blocked

By AL POST
MCN Staff Writer

A Romulus couple complained to the City Council that one set of neighbors has been parking their cars in front of their family's mailbox recently blocking their regular delivery of mail.

Alona and Anthony McNeil

of Riverbridge Road in Romulus on Monday brought in a large poster showing photos of the various vehicles parked in front of their mail box.

Alona McNeil, who served as the family spokesperson, said she talked to her neighbors concerning her lack of mail delivery, but one set of neighbors doesn't seem to care.

She even has called the police, but once the post office vehicle passes her home for the day, such protests are ineffective.

Police have ticketed the cars, but even that doesn't seem to get their attention, McNeil said.

"But after one such ticketing, I found a window broken in our family vehicle," she said.

"I don't want to get into a fist confrontation," McNeil said, "but this situation has gone on too long."

She then smiled at the council members and said "we decided to come here, because we know there are great minds up there, since we voted to put you there."

McNeil said she only speaks for her family on the issue, but feels the problem is centered on the occupants of only one home in the neighborhood.

"I don't like bills, but I'd rather pay them in a timely fashion," she said.

Councilman Jimmie Raspberry asked Mayor William Oakley to have the police check out the complaint.

Councilman William Wadsworth agreed. "If one or more of the cars is towed away, I guarantee it will get their attention."

Oakley agreed to have the police investigate the alleged illegal parking problem.

Rarey seeks city appointment

By AL POST
MCN Staff Writer

Concerned Romulus resident James Rarey, who has raised questions on local Tax Increment Finance Authority issues and council parliamentary procedures, has asked to be named a member of the city's Charter Review Committee.

The committee is expected to be named soon, so that the city could place a possible four-year political term on the ballot as soon as possible, maybe as early as November.

Local political leaders have asked voter support on hiking the present two-year terms to four years in the past, but voters have given them a thumbs down answer.

It is not definite if the review committee would be asked to review just the term issue, or to review the entire charter.

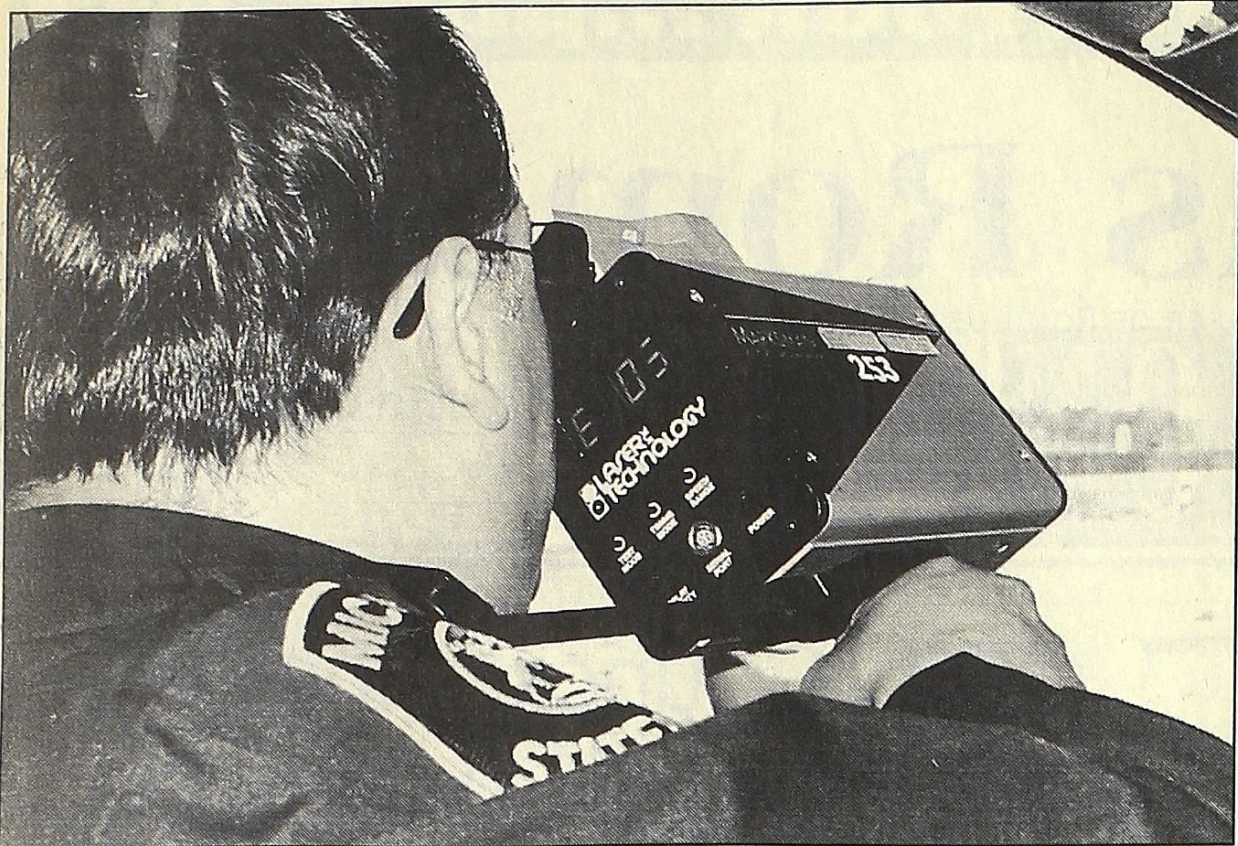

City Councilman William Crova was a member of the last review committee and asked City Clerk Linda Choate if past committee members had been

Police crusade to tighten seat belt law

By LORI GILLESPIE
MCN Staff Writer

Although there is a seat belt law in effect, it is not considered a primary violation.

An individual can be issued a citation for not wearing his or her seat belt in the front seat, but there must be another violation for the police to pull a driver over.

The Michigan State Police, in co-operation with several local police departments are pushing to make the seat belt law a primary violation.

"We are trying to get it across to the legislators and the community that getting it passed is not so much because we want to write more tickets as it is for the safety factor," said Sgt. Duane Avery of the Michigan State Police. "The simple fact is that wearing seat belts saves lives."

According to the sergeant, seat belt usage has gone up in the last few years, while the number of deaths and injuries suffered in car accidents have gone down.

Avery said some people still refuse to wear seat belts.

"They say, 'it should be up to me to decide if I want to wear it.' They don't realize that when someone gets killed in a car accident, it affects more than just one person," he explained. "Their family is left with the thought, 'if they had their belt on, they may have survived.'"

On March 27, as a part of the "No Excuses" campaign, the state police were joined by other departments, including those from Van Buren Township and the city of Romulus, to help enforce the seat belt law on Interstate-94.

While riding with Trooper John Sosa, an 18-year veteran, he explained to the writer that there has to be a legitimate reason for him to stop a car.

Sosa pulled a non-seat belt wearer over because her car had a cracked taillight. He gave the driver a warning about the taillight, and issued a citation for the seat belt, which can cost $45-$55 depending on the court.

The trooper explained that police can ticket all passengers riding in the front seat if they are not wearing their seat belt. A couple from Belleville found out the hard way, when their truck was pulled over for a cracked windshield. The driver and the passenger were each issued a citation for not complying with the seat belt law. As Sosa returned to the squad car to write the tickets, the truck's occupants could be seen putting their belts on.

"They'll probably wear their seat belts from now on," Sosa said. "Sometimes, this is all it takes. They won't forget this."

Sosa said he has heard every excuse imaginable from people who don't wear their seat belts. "They've told me they had a friend who was trapped in their car and couldn't get out (because of the seat belt). Other people say it bothers their neck," he said. "If you look at the long-term effect, it far outweighs this. The seat belt keeps you from being thrown out of the car."

DIGEST

Annie to shine at high school

The musical play Annie starring Heather Heughens of the Romulus Middle School will be presented at 7:30 p.m. April 25 and 26 at Romulus High School.

It will mark the production of the first school play in many years, a school official said.

A third performance will be conducted at 2 p.m. April 27.

The cast of over 25 persons, not all of them high school students, has been gathered by Judith Thompson, vocal and dance teacher in the district.

Heather, a 13-year-old eighth grader has been called a "natural actress with an outgoing precocious personality."

Upon earning the part, she exclaimed "I like to express feelings in a different way. Acting lets me take on other people's problems and then I can leave them."

Heather gets tremendous support from her parents and a sister, Sarah, 6, and a brother, Eric, 5, who attend Cory School.

In addition to Heather, another young Romulus student Stephanie Gurner, a fourth grader at Halecreek Elementary School, will be featured as the littlest orphan Molly.

Young Stephanie said "when I tried out for the play, I just thought what it would be like to not have a Mom and Dad."

Gary Sturm of Northville is serving as director of the play. His credits include the roles of "Daddy Warbucks" in a Nancy Gerwin Production and "Ben" in Little Foxes at Greenfield Village.

He also has served as director of the Marquis Theater of Northville and Northville High School.

Tickets cost $6 for adults, and $5 for students and senior citizens.

Romulus sailor near Taiwan

Romulus Navy Petty Officer 2nd Class Daniel H. Gilbert is in the Western Pacific Ocean near the island of Taiwan aboard the guided missile cruiser USS Port Royal.

He is one of 400 sailors aboard the cruiser providing a naval presence during the days of the recent Taiwanese general election and there after.

A 1986 Romulus High School graduate, he joined the U.S. Navy the same year. He is scheduled to return to Hawaii in June.

Local airman completes basic

Air Force Airman Matthew S. Scibilia has graduated from basic military training at Lackland Air Force Base in San Antonio, Tex.

He is a son Gaspare A. and Cathrine E. Scibilia of Romulus.

Scibilia is a 1993 graduate of Romulus Senior High School.

Head Start seeks students

Children from low income families, foster children or children with disabilities are now being sought for enrollment in the September 1996 Romulus Head Start and Michigan Department of Education pre-school program.

Parents of three and fourth-year old children wishing to join the free program are urged to call 728-7815. The classes are held at the old Beverly School.

Softball tourney slated April 27

A men's adult softball tournament is slated for Elmer Johnson Park on April 27 and 28 under the direction of the Romulus Recreation Department.

The registration deadline is 5 p.m. on April 25 and the per team fee is $125.

The fee covers softballs, umpires, scorekeepers, sponsor trophies for first and second place and t-shirts for first place team members.

Hilda Block cited

By AL POST
MCN Staff Writer

Hilda Block, long term owner of Block's Stand and Greenhouse in Romulus, earned a double treat on March 22 as she was honored on her birthday by the Greater Romulus Chamber of Commerce for being its 16th annual Romulus Person of the Year.

Block was cited for working at her family business along with her late husband, Alfie, for many years and for becoming "a generous goodwill ambassador for the community of Romulus."

The chamber praised Block for her "overwhelming generosity to local non-profit organizations, such as schools, parent groups and churches."

It's citation stressed Block's "tremendous dedication in helping youths with problems—particularly by counseling them, giving them jobs and helping them with any handicaps they might have."

The citation stressed Block's tremendous dedication in helping youths with problems -- particularly by counseling them, giving them jobs and helping them with any handicaps they might have.

The chamber explained "Block's Market brings people into this community from all over and Hilda is always friendly and helpful to all."

Despite its longterm success, the chamber award emphasized, "Block's Market still has that country atmosphere with happy, contented employees that enthuse so many customers."

Block was honored at a testimonial dinner at the Royce Hotel that was organized by Mark Lewkowicz, chairman of the Person of the Year Committee. Also serving on the committee were Larry Williams of Precision Hardware, Bill Crane of Crane's Funeral Home, Patty Ayres of the U.S. Federal Credit Union and Gil White Jr. of Dadson Electric Co.

Block received official resolutions from Mayor William Oakley and the Romulus City Council, State Rep. Gregory Pitoniak on behalf of the Michigan House of Representatives and Romulus School Board President Deborah Hoffman on behalf of the school trustees.

At the conclusion of the speakers' list, Block was honored for her birthday celebration, as the audience sang "Happy Birthday" to her as a large birthday cake was wheeled out in her honor.

Earlier persons of the year include: Bill Simonds, Doug Baum, the late Carl Morris, Jason Lovette, the late Gil White, Joyce Palmer, Leo Kalotta, Gerald Nault, Dan Bales, the late Mary Ann Banks, Richard Kruse, former Mayor Beverly McAnally, Bill Crane, Florence Klein and Harlan D. Whichello.

Airport readies for Easter holiday crush

By AL POST
MCN Staff Writer

Workers at Detroit Metro Airport in Romulus are gearing up for an extra busy Easter holiday weekend, beginning as early as today.

Michael Conway, airport spokesperson, revealed the busiest days at the airport and parking lots are expected to be Thursday, Friday, Saturday and Monday.

"Ironically Easter Sunday will be a below normal Sunday for travel, because everyone will have arrived where they are spending the day," Conway explained.

Metro Airport has added more than 800 new parking spots in time for this holiday crush, Conway said, with 12,000 parking spots now available (the largest in airport history).

Travel through Metro Airport is continuing to surge, he said, with 29,013,260 arriving and departing passengers being serviced in 1995.

This action had Metro Airport surging by Charles DeGaulle Airport in Paris, McCarren in Las Vegas and Newark in New Jersey.

Metro Airport now ranks 13th in the world and ninth in North America in terms of total passengers, Conway said, and is ranked eighth in the world in airport landings and takeoffs.

In January, Metro Airport marked its 29th consecutive month of record breaking passenger traffic, he concluded.

Cable may add new meetings on TV

By AL POST
MCN Staff Writer

Romulus cable users may soon be able to see the city's Planning Commission and Zoning Board of Appeals meetings on television soon.

First the city's Cable Commission will have to select a new chairman at its April meeting, since past Chairman Marvin Scanlon has stepped down.

Then the commissioners will be asked to come up with a priority funding list for its five-year plan outlined to the City Council several months ago by Scanlon.

On Monday night, the council accepted the only qualified bid for studio lights in the cable television studio in the basement of Romulus City Hall. The $4,620 bid was accepted from Communications Systems Group of Oak Park.

A second vote was taken to purchase various video equipment for cable productions in Romulus at a cost of $23,356 from Thainer Electronics of Ann Arbor.

Commissioner Gwen Sibert said the commission cannot realistically present the council with a priority cost list until after it has a sitdown session with the city's financial director.

Sibert said hopefully the commission would try to have next month Planning Commission and Zoning Board of Appeals meetings on cablevision.

The Council also voted to reverse the 40/60 financial split with parent cable company, allowing the city to take the larger share.

David Nelson.

Rarey's letter dated March 27, 1996 stated "I hereby request appointment to any committee, commission or other body formed, reactivated or reconstituted to consider revisions to the City Charter.

"I have been a Romulus resident for seven years and am a registered voter," Rarey concluded.

In the other communication, Rarey asked Wadsworth to be censured by his fellow council members if he did not publicly apologize to Councilwoman Mary Collins for making a "vicious personal attack on Collins."

Romulus baby dies in 2-car accident

By AL POST
MCN Staff Writer

A six-month old Romulus baby was killed in a two-vehicle crash last Wednesday in Ypsilanti, when her mother's car was flipped over by the force of the crash.

Dead is Kiara Brion Ross, daughter of Olivia and Troy Ross of Romulus. The infant was pronounced dead at Beyer Hospital in Ypsilanti. The mother was treated for minor glass cuts at the hospital and released.

Ypsilanti Sgt. Stan Eldridge said the Ross car was hit broadside as it passed through the intersection of S. Grove and Factory, south of the city's downtown area.

The driver of the second car was listed as a 41-year-old Ypsilanti woman. The mother of the dead girl was able to escape from the overturned car by crawling out a window.

Eldridge said the accident information is being turned over to the Washtenaw County Prosecutor's Office. No charges or citations have been issued at this time, he said.

The accident tied up traffic in that section of Ypsilanti for about three hours, Eldridge revealed.

Other survivors included a sister, Khyla; her grandmother, Marian Robinson; her grandparents, Oliver and Pecola Ross and William and Daphne Grant; her great-grandparents, William and Nettie Pope and many aunts, uncles and cousins.

The funeral was conducted at the Uht Funeral Home on March 30. Family members provided the eulogies. Interment was in the United Memorial Gardens of Plymouth.

Bergeron heads new foundation

By AL POST
MCN Staff Writer

Former City Councilman Noah (Pete) Bergeron has been elected president of the newly created Romulus Education Foundation, a group that will specialize in fund raising for the local school district.

The election took place on March 28 at the Romulus Schools Administration office. Also elected were James P. Gannon, treasurer; and Brian A. Oakley, secretary.

Gannon also is president of Trans Overseas Corp., an area international freight forwarder; and Oakley is a local attorney.

Thomas Dolan, curriculum director for the school district and ex officio member of the foundation, said fund raising projects planned by the foundation members should open new doors for the district's grant writing program.

Bergeron is urging foundation members to come up with some new fund raising projects by the time of the group's next meeting at 8:30 a.m. April 11.

It was speculated that the foundation group would take over the school district's annual golf outing as well as develop one or more different fund raising projects for this year alone.

The foundation also plans to establish its official by-laws at the next meeting. Funds raised will be controlled by the foundation board and funneled into various needy school district projects from year to year.

Other members of the foundation include Carl Etue, general manager of Kean Manufacturing Corp. and Kevin Warrenton, Metro Airport terminal manager. School Board member Julie Oleszkowicz also has signed on as a second ex officio member of the foundation.

The concept of starting the foundation unit was sparked by past state education cuts and threatened cuts.

Oakley would begin night sessions

By AL POST
MCN Staff Writer

Thirty-fourth District Court Judge candidate Brian A. Oakley has vowed if elected this November he would seek to have evening hours set up for persons attending court sessions in Romulus.

Oakley told more than 225 supporters at his March 14 campaign kickoff party that he plans to adopt "non-traditional court hours, including night court," after he is elected judge.

"Accessibility is extremely important," Oakley stressed, so the non-traditional court hours he is recommending will "allow people to take care of court business without missing time from work."

Oakley for reference.

City Department of Public Works employee (and union representative) Carl Brooks was asked his opinion. Brooks told the council he had spoken to union leaders prior to the council session Monday night and was told "Herman does not exist in the union right now."

Brooks said that the union may also file a grievance against the city for having a non-union worker (Johnson) filling a union work position.

The kickoff was conducted at the P.N.A. Hall in Sumpter Township and featured a St. Patrick's Day theme.

Guests included Wayne County Commissioner Bruce Patterson, local Judges Henry Zaborowski and Sean Cox and elected officials from the cities of Romulus and Belleville as well as Sumpter and Huron Townships.

Oakley stressed that "innovation and hard work" are the building blocks of his campaign. Accountability on the bench, his views on court reform and the role he sees for himself in the local communities of the 34th District Court, were among the other items he spoke on that night.

A small friendly six-week old Gold Labrador-Shepherd puppy was presented to an eight-year-old Romulus girl Monday night, only weeks after her first puppy was killed in a traffic accident on Goddard Road.

The puppy was ceremonially given to young Brittany Kaifesh at the opening of the Romulus Council meeting by members of the Romulus Environmentalists Caring About People (RECAP).

Brittany's first puppy reportedly ran into the street during a snowstorm on March 20 and was killed by a passing vehicle.

THE ENVIRONMENTAL QUALITY COMPANY

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS CONCERNING PCBs IN MICHIGAN

Why is Wayne Disposal applying for a TSCA permit to accept PCB wastes?

Our hazardous waste landfill is the safest and most appropriate facility in Michigan for the secure disposal of PCB wastes. There are literally hundreds of contaminated sites throughout our state and the Great Lakes Basin that must be cleaned up, including 33 in Wayne County alone. We believe it makes good sense to clean up these sites immediately and dispose of the waste in a secure facility, rather than allowing PCBs to remain free in the environment.

Why should we take a chance that these PCBs will pollute lakes and rivers in the area?

Many area lakes and rivers are already contaminated with PCBs, including Belleville Lake, Willow Creek, Tyler Pond and the River Raisin. Tons of this PCB contaminated sediment is lying uncontrolled in our own backyard. Our hazardous waste landfill will provide a secure location for safely managing these wastes, so they are isolated from you and the environment.

Why can't we clean up these contaminated sites and send the waste somewhere else?

There are only five or six sites in the country that are licensed to accept PCB waste and none of them are close to Michigan. This situation is causing long delays, because transporting waste several hundred miles adds hundreds of thousands of dollars to the total cost of each cleanup. We need a safe and cost-effective disposal option here in the midwest if we want to get these sites cleaned up in the near future.

What happens if some of the PCBs in your landfill get into the groundwater?

We've operated hazardous waste landfills in Van Buren Township for nearly 20 years and never had a problem with groundwater contamination. Our state-of-the-art landfill includes a double composite liner system featuring two thick layers of plastic liner, complemented by dense deposits of natural clay and two leachate collection systems. This design is very effective in containing waste above ground.

Where will this PCB waste come from?

The majority of our customers are from Michigan and states surrounding the Great Lakes. We also have customers in the northeast and a few in the southeast portion of the country.

Will you be accepting PCB waste from Canada?

The Canadian government has banned the export of PCBs and PCB contaminated waste.

If you have additional questions, or agree that PCBs should be removed from the environment and isolated in a secure facility, call David Rutledge at (313) 480-8030.

Detroit must pay for or lose Recorder's Court

By IVAN HELFMAN
MCN Staff Writer

Recorder's Court judges, who argued hard to save their benches, may be able to do it. Under court reform legislation passed Thursday by the state House of Representatives, Recorder's Court can remain — as long as the city of Detroit pays for it by October 1, 1997.

Otherwise, Recorder's Court will be abolished on January 1, 1998.

Currently the state of Michigan pays $20 million to support the court, which tries criminal cases in Detroit. But no longer tries crimes that occurred in western Wayne.

The legislation, which must

be passed by the state Senate to take effect, was a compromise. The original proposal by Rep. Deborah Whyman (R-Canton) would have phased out Recorder's Court.

The threat of Whyman's legislation caused Recorder's Court judges, who are elected by Detroit voters, to stop trying out-county felony cases. A series of unpopular rulings by Chief Recorder's Court Judge Dalton Roberson, including decisions to free some accused murderers on bail, outraged many out-county residents.

Under the legislation, Recorder's Court judges will be absorbed into the Wayne County Circuit Court if Detroit won't come up with the money.

The reform will also empower the circuit court judges trying divorce cases to deal with other family legal problems, including juvenile cases that are now tried in probate court

Prizes to be given to top moms

"God could not be everywhere, and therefore he made mothers," is the tribute of one anonymous poet.

An another tribute comes from poet Ann Taylor, "Who ran to help me when I fell. And would some pretty story tell, Or kiss the place to make it well? My Mother."

There's a lot of good things to say about mothers, and Michigan Community Newspapers would like to hear all of them!

MCN invites youngsters and adults to send a brief summary of something special that their mothers have done for them (no more than 100 words), plus her name, address and phone number and the name and phone number of the nominator.

Our editorial board will select the top prize-winner from the entries and runners-up from the five other communities.

The six special mothers will be honored on Mother's Day with certificates, flowers and a family dinner for the top prize winner. Their photos also will appear in the newspapers' Salute to Mothers on May 8.

Letters must be received no later than May 2, so that the prizes can be awarded prior to Mother's Day on May 12.

The winner of the contest will receive $50 worth of certificates for dinners at Amantae's Restaurant, which can be used on Mother's Day or on any other day of the winners's choosing.

She and the five runners-up will receive flowers from local florists and certificates acknowledging their selection as MCN Mother of the Year or 1996 Community Mother of the Year.

Send your entries before May 2 to Michigan Community Newspapers, 35540 Michigan Ave., Wayne, Mich. 48184.

Car culture featured

Families are invited to join educator Randi Douglas and folksinger Josh White, Jr. for "Detroit Storyliving: The Car Culture," an interactive trip through time that uses group activities and the process of improvisational theater to recreate historical events. "Car Culture" will be held at the Detroit Historical Museum from 2 to 4 p.m. April 21.

The workshop is recommended for children age 6 and older, and adults of all ages. Pre-registration is required; to register call 313-833- 1198. Admission is $6 for adults and #4 for children under 12, and includes regular admission to the museum.

The Detroit Historical Museum is located at the corner of Woodward and Kirby in the heart of Detroit's Cultural Center. Secured parking is available in the Museum's lot off Kirby.

Don't tell me Inkster police are slow to respond.

One of MCN's delivery persons was involved in an on-the-job incident, that thanks to Inkster's timeliness, ended up as material for a comic sketch, rather than a violent incident.

Here's the scoop. Michael Ross, veteran MCN route supervisor pulled up to Middlebelt Market last Thursday to deliver newspapers to the busy convenience store just like he had done for five years. As usual, Ross left his keys in the ignition and went in to drop off new papers, and collect the old.

Upon returning outside, Ross went ballistic as he watched his truck being driven down Andover Street. A quick call to the police resulted in a response time of less than three minutes. Immediately, the cops sped after the truck. Upon catching up, the driver jammed the truck into reverse and bailed out.

Officers Robert Karls and Alexander Phillips had the interesting challenge of trying to stop this driverless truck that was now going in reverse. The truck destroyed a stop sign and ran over a couple of small trees. Finally one of the officers was able to leap inside the truck bed, open the driver side door and halt the vehicle. Needless to say, while all this was going on, the suspect was able to run from the scene.

Kudos to officers Karls and Phillips. We appreciate the quick response and recovery of Mike's vehicle.

Mike's musings

Mike Wilcox

The first two finalists in the Windjammer Cruise contest sponsored by MCN and local businesses have been chosen. They are Melissa Badder of Wayne and Edith Lamp of Wayne. These two women will join six others as finalists to win the all-expense paid Caribbean cruise for two. More details on how to enter can be found on Pages 6 and 7 of this newspaper.

Carol Burrick has driven a school bus for 21 years. It was that long resume of experience that saved the lives of thirty-three John Glenn Color Guard members as their bus collided with a Lincoln on U.S. 23 last Saturday.

Quick thinking Burrick did not avoid hitting the car that veered in front of her bus after the driver lost control. Her reasoning was that if she had tried the bus most certainly would have tumbled down a large ravine.

As it was, the initial impact caused the Lincoln to flip over with the bus catching the car under its front end, driving the two down the side of the ravine. It was more than an hour before Burrick was able to leave the driver's seat because she had to keep her foot on the brake pedal to avoid the bus from completely rolling over the Lincoln. Two medivac helicopters airlifted the two passengers in the Lincoln to Ann Arbor.

Remarkably, none of the bus passengers were injured. In fact the Color Guard, after a brief break, loaded into another bus and continued their journey to Saginaw, where incredibly they would go on to finish fifth in state competition.

Carol Burrick's heroic efforts are to be applauded. Without her quick thinking it could have been an extremely disastrous conclusion.

Newspaper congratulated

To the editor:

It is with great pleasure that I congratulate the Belleville Enterprise on celebrating its 110th anniversary on March 6. What better way to celebrate the anniversary than with Belleville Mayor Dennis Fassett proclaiming March 6 "Belleville Enterprise Day." Your dedication in presenting news that is objective and fair to the community is commendable.

Congratulations again. Please feel free to contact me if I can be of assistance in the future.

Organ donors are sought

To the editor:

Over 40,000 Americans are currently on the national waiting list for a life-saving organ transplant and over 2,000 people are waiting in Michigan alone. Becoming an organ donor is as simple as signing a donor card or the back of your drivers license and telling your family of your decision. But not enough people are taking the time to think about this or discuss this critical issue with families. Because of the continuing shortage of donations, eight or nine Americans die every day waiting for an organ transplant.

April 21-28 is National Organ and Tissue Donor Awareness Week (NOTDAW). For one week in April the National Kidney Foundation is spearheading a nationwide campaign to make everyone aware of the organ donor shortage in this country and to move them to become a part of the solution by becoming a designated organ donor. This year the focus is on family discussion. When deciding to become a donor, it is important to inform your family so that they can see to it that your wish is carried out.

Your support of the campaign will increase public awareness and help the Foundation ensure that every person who needs a transplant receives one. If you require any additional materials or if you have any questions, please feel free to call Wendy Hanson or myself at (313) 971-2800. Thank you in advance for your consideration.

Just call her Allison

To the editor:

When most people say they're not prejudice, they're talking about racial prejudice. But there are many other types of prejudice. People can be prejudice to the type of clothing you wear, the music you listen to, or how you live your life.

Whether we admit it or not, we are all prejudice in some way. We label each other all the time. Hippie, jock, or freak are three popular ones. Believe me, I've heard them all.

I've gotten to the point where I don't care if people label me. But if you're going to label me, do it right. Some at North have called my friends and me hippies. To tell you the truth, we're the farthest thing from it.

People seem to be slightly confused about what a hippie is. Hippies like things natural. They don't dye their hair, they wear sandals year round, wear Grateful Dead shirts and bell bottoms, and their hair is usually down to their waist. I may be labeling now, but it's only to make a point.

I don't particularly care for the Grateful Dead, bell bottoms, and people with hair down to their waists. I love dying my hair, and I've never owned a pair of Birkenstock sandals in my life. Nor do I plan on it.

I'd prefer to be called a skater or a punk if you must label me. I skateboard, like the Beastie Boys, wear Dockers, and hate Nikes. On the other hand, I have a chain wallet, wear heavy eyeliner, corduroys, and yes, I own a pair of combat boots.

Labeling people and making comments about them can be a very hurtful thing. You should always think twice before you say something you may regret later. Opinions and tastes change. I'm a good example of that.

All labels aside, I'd prefer to be called Allison.

Winds carry toxic substance

To the editor:

I live down wind of the Central Wayne Incinerator, located on Inkster Road, between Powers and Annapolis roads. I have long been concerned about the possibility of toxic substances emitting from the smoke stacks. On calm days the smoke does not smell or taste good. I wondered just what we have been breathing.

During a meeting March 11, 1996, at the Holy Family Church, 27800 Annapolis Road, Inkster, Me. Ed McArdle of Sierra Club pointed out the real danger of pollution, as measured by the U.S. EPA.

He also supplied information regarding costs of waste disposal: Incineration versus Landfilling and Recycling.

In addition, The Wayne County Department of Environment has recently published a report detailing the impact of airborne pollutants on the Rouge River Basin: Contributions to surface water quality of atmospheric deposition in Rouge River Watershed.

Also, I have received an offi-

Quotable...

"Kids are born smart. We, as adults, 'dumb them up,'" said James Epps of Inkster, education activist and runner-up in the 1996 Person of the Year contest. Epps hopes to raise the educational standards for Inkster's youth with the aid of the total community.

Hero of the Week

Michigan Community Newspapers recognizes the heroic, life-saving efforts of Wayne-Westland bus driver Carol Burricks and names her the Hero of the Week.

A seasoned driver of more than 21 years, Burricks maneuvered a bus carrying 33 students and six parents, from flipping over into a ravine on the side of northbound U.S. 23 following a collision.

According to Transportation Director Michael P. Steinhelbel, Burricks extensive training and years of experience helped her avoid a near tragedy.

Supervisor criticized

To the editor:
The recent meeting of the Van Buren Township Board on March 19, 1996 once again shows the lack of accountability to the tax paying citizens concerning the Van Buren Public Safety Department. Instead of having a plan to fix the apparent problems and the continued embarrassment to our township, Supervisor Jacques staged a mud-slinging contest against multiple groups and citizens within and outside of our community who dare to speak out with their concerns. Mr. Jacques continued attacks on a local paper, political opponents and UNISON, a Washtenaw County coalition of churches that work on social causes, clearly shows how desperate he is to find scapegoats instead of solutions.

Immigration supported

To the editor:
Immigrants are a positive addition to a country and its economy if it has capitalism as its growing or dominant theory of economics. The U.S. economy in the 19th century was the closest to this economic model and became the richest and most powerful country in the world - all with the help of its immigrants.

Under any type of mixed or socialist theories of economics, immigrants eventually become a threat to a country's survival. The altruist (sacrificial) morality of the government of these countries sanctions coercion to redistribute the wealth of its citizens from those who have it to those who need it. Implicitly, the people eventually recognize that these actions are a threat to their very survival and rebel, group against group.

Editorial policy note:

To provide fair and unbiased coverage in the pre-election newspapers, Michigan Community Newspapers will not publish guest columns from incumbents or challengers between June 1 and the August primary election and during the month of September through the November general election.

Announcements of meetings or public events sponsored by the candidates during the pre-election period will be published in addition to any news of general interest submitted by candidates.

Prior to the elections, MCN will send questionnaires to the candidates and publish informational articles about them in the weeks prior to the elections.

Although the general election is several months away, it is already beginning to "heat up" in Western Wayne County.

Announcements of candidacy -- from both incumbents and challengers -- are being made. At the same time, some incumbents have chosen not to seek re-election.

Michigan Community Newspapers will keep you up-to-date with a weekly listing of who has announced his or her intention to run and who has dropped from the race.

In:
Wayne County Sheriff Robert Ficano is seeking another term.

Michigan Court of Appeals Judge Maureen Pulte Reilly has filed for re-election.

Out:
Van Buren Township Trustee John Cicotte has decided not to seek re-election due to health problems. Earlier, Trustee Anthony Tomaino announced he would not seek re-election due to pressures of business.

Commissioners displeased with chair's acts

Wayne County Commissioner Bruce Patterson filed an official protest stemming from actions taken by the commission chairman.

During the full board session held March 21, Patterson said Chairman Ricardo Solomon circulated a full-color brochure he arranged printing and videotaped the session because he planned on delivering a "State of the County" address and declaring the accomplishments of the commission during the current legislative term despite the fact the commission's agenda did not reveal the course of action the chair intended on taking.

Three commissioners, including Patterson, Andrew Richner and Thaddeus McCotter weren't pleased, according to Patterson. Patterson filed an official protest on the record and a formal objection with the clerk of the commission.

"Where is the respect for other people Democrats are always talking about?"

- Bruce Patterson

"It is interesting to note that on the cover page of our notice of meeting there is a declaration and I quote: 'This meeting is called and conducted in accordance with the provisions of the Open Meetings Act end of quote.' I believe the actions of the chairman violated the letter and spirit of that act. Chairman Solomon knew full well from earlier discussions that the members of the minority (suburban, Republican) caucus did not wish to be part of any official ceremony declaring the agenda, because it does not articulate our agenda.

Our constituents sent us to serve them on the Wayne County Commission in order to represent their interests, not business as usual. And, while we agree with some of the things that were said, such as reorganization of the commission, development of a capital improvement plan, and the creation and implementation of a debt policy, there seems to be more 'lip service' than devotion to these concepts.

"And the tax and spend philosophy of most of the commissioners will prevent them from ever incorporating even portions of our legislative agenda which includes such concepts of fiscal responsibility, lower taxes, more efficiency and elimination of governmental waste, privatization of services, open and competitive bid processes, true ethics reform, adherence to the delivery of essential, legitimate governmental services without regard to political connections and party affiliation, and abolition of nepotism, favoritism and cronyism in employment by the county.

"It was interesting to note that the chairman didn't even extend the courtesy of permitting a minority response. Where is the tolerance, where is the respect for other people Democrats are ways talking about? We three commissioners represent nearly a half a million constituents in our districts and if you look at voter participation across the County of Wayne the number is closer to 43 percent of 2.2 million residents, This action disenfranchises all of those people, it silences their voices. That's wrong!"

Chrysler award presented to dealership

Chrysler Corporation announced today that Dick Scott Dodge, Inc. located at 684 W. Ann Arbor Road, in Plymouth has been awarded the prestigious 1996 Five Star Award for Excellence.

The five Star Award for Excellence recognizes total commitment in both sales and service as determined by customer satisfaction ratings. Dick Scott Dodge, Inc. has consistently earned superior satisfaction ratings and met Chrysler Corporation's highest standards in management, personnel training and equipment. Standards so stringent that fewer than one out of every four Chrysler dealerships earn this distinction.

"The fact that it's our customers who decide which dealership wins the Five Star Award for Excellence makes winning the award even more gratifying," said Jeff Scott, General Sales Manager. "It's a clear reflection of how well we are satisfying customers throughout their total dealership experience."

Dick Scott Dodge, Inc. offers a complete line of Dodge and Dodge Truck vehicles. Showroom hours are from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday and Thursday, 9 a.m.-6 p.m. Tuesday, Wednesday and Friday, and Saturday 10 a.m.-3:00 p.m., and parts and service hours are from 7 a.m.-9 p.m. Monday and Thursday, and 7 a.m.-6 p.m. Tuesday, Wednesday and Friday.

Patrick Boyd

Trooper receives award

An Ypsilanti cop who saved the life of a man in a fiery crash has been honored with the Michigan State Police Life-saving Award.

Trooper Patrick Boyd received the award because of heroics in an apartment complex auto fire. He responded to the scene and upon arriving, he saw several cars that had been involved in a crash. One of the vehicles, a van, was on fire. Unable to see inside because of the smoke, Boyd attempted to extinguish the fire. Realizing that there was someone inside, he opened the door, unbuckled the victim, and dragged him to safety. The man was semi-conscious and disoriented. He was transported to a hospital and later released.

The Michigan State Police Board of Awards recognized that if it were not for Boyd's quick response, the victim may not have survived the accident.

Boyd enlisted with the department in January 1990 and graduated from the 107th Recruit School. He was first assigned as a trooper to the Ypsilanti Post. In January, 1996 he transferred to Southeast Criminal Investigation Division/ Conspiracy Crimes as a detective.

A native of Muskegon, Boyd now lives in Plymouth with his spouse, Madelyn and their three children.

Performance earns scholarship

The outstanding performance of Eastern Michigan University men's basketball star Brian Tolbert has netted a $3,100 scholarship from Baskin-Robbins 31-Flavors for the university's general scholarship fund.

In honor of its flavor-of-the-month -- Malted March Madness -- Baskin-Robbins 31-Flavors had pledged a donation for any player who scores 31 points or more in any of the final 31 games of the men's NCAA championship tournament.

Non-filers cost government billions

Though getting tax forms in the mail by April 15 might seem like the popular thing to do, about 10 million people think otherwise, according to a Southfield accountant.

According to Southfield CPA Jim Jenkins, 10 million people won't be filing their taxes on the April 15 deadline. This amounts to 8 percent of the total filers. These non-filers end up costing the government 45 billion, or half of the national debt.

They (non-filers and under reporters) fall into three groups and it's mostly a guy thing.

- Jim Jenkins

"They (non-filers and under reporters) fall into three groups," said Jenkins, "and it's mostly a guy thing." Jenkins, who knows the non-filer profile has helped over 200 people get back on track with the IRS over the past 20 years. He authored Failure to File, an instructional tome that is available in two editions; self-help for the non-filer and a reference edition for accountants working with non-filers.

The top three non-filing categories are construction workers, freelancers and the basic procrastinators. The first two categories are people who live a feast or famine lifestyle.

Construction work is a seasonal occupation, with workers frequently unemployed during the winter months. As the tax deadline approaches, construction workers have usually spent all their savings from the previous season with little left to pay taxes. At that point the decision to put off paying the IRS until they are back to work sets the construction worker on the road to becoming a non-filer.

The freelance category includes writers and photographers, models (auto show product specialists), cabinet makers, business consultants, etc. Generally speaking these people have incredible highs and lows financially. When they have a "job," the money is good, but because they are self-employed independent contractors, when they aren't working, they have no income. Without appropriate planning, the freelance worker is often broke when April 15 rolls around. The freelancer often files for an extension or doesn't file at all. One year later, they owe even more and may not file again.

Procrastinators just can't complete tasks. Jenkins describes this group as people who, quite often, are pillars of the community, hold solid jobs--often mid to upper management, but are just unable to put the final details of their return together. They believe they will, but they don't.

ENJOY A HEALTHY PREGNANCY

by Maureen Fleming, M.D.

Enjoying

When you're pregnant, you want to do all you can to take good care of your baby and yourself. That's why regular prenatal care is essential. It will help protect your health and your baby's health. Regular visits will give you an opportunity to discuss issues related to pregnancy, labor, delivery, and breast-feeding with your doctor as well.

Maintain healthy lifestyle

Eat a well balanced diet that includes lots of fruits and vegetables, as well as extra protein and calcium. Drink plenty of fluids, but avoid alcohol and limit the amount of caffeine you consume.

If you smoke, stop.

Exercise regularly. Walking, swimming, cycling on a stationary bike, or following a workout program that's designed for pregnant women is generally best. Avoid sports that can lead to falls. Talk to your doctor before beginning an exercise program.

Every time you get in the car, buckle up. Make sure the lap belt is low around your hips. Use the shoulder belt as well.

If you use over-the-counter medications, read the labels and the package inserts carefully. Avoid appetite suppressants, aspirin, and ibuprofen.

If you have any questions, talk to your doctor.

Business as usual

It's best to maintain your regular schedule as much as possible. If you work, you probably can continue in your job -- though if it involves heavy lifting or if you are exposed to any toxic substances, be sure to tell your doctor.

If you have young children at home, your mothering duties will continue. Be aware of your own limitations, on the job or at home, and don't work to the point of exhaustion.

Other activities can continue as well. Unless there is a specific problem such as pre-term labor or vaginal bleeding, couples can continue to have sexual relations through most of the pregnancy.

Enjoy your pregnancy -- it's a wonderful stage of life!

Quality education is focus of Inkster resident

By JOAN DYER-ZINNER
MCN Managing Editor

Inkster resident James Epps probably spends more volunteer hours working for improvements in the Inkster Schools than any other individual.

It is for his dedication to quality education and his enthusiasm in attracting others to join him in his crusade that earned Epps a runner-up honor in the Michigan Community Newspapers' 1996 Person of the Year award and the designation of MCN's Inkster Citizen of the Year.

His long association with the Inkster School District began when his oldest daughter began in the Head Start program, continued all the way to her graduation and still continues as his youngest daughter, a sophomore, attends Inkster High School.

"I have a vision. I can see what can be," said Epps. "Someone may see an open field, but I can see a new center there serving kids, the Kids come into the world smart, and we, as adults, dumb them up. Watch how kids play together. You put little kids together and they get along. When do they separate?

handicapped and those with special needs."

Epps, who is a General Motors Corp. retiree, has a lot of ideas about education, and he had dedicated himself - with a missionary spirit - to spreading the word about community involvement in education.

"You've heard the saying, 'It takes a whole village to raise a child,' and that's true," Epps said. "The center core of it is the school, and other organizations are like the spokes in a wheel - businesses, the community, the churches and recreation.

"All of them are spokes in the wheel, and if we all turn together than as a whole village we can raise a child," Epps said.

If his ideas sound like those of the Cities in School program, it is no coincidence, says Epps who supports the concept and has promoted the idea through the schools, block clubs and parents clubs.

Epps said he displays a sign which reads, "Leave Your Personal Issues Outside," because he believes that petty differences must be put aside to work for higher goals.

He has a lot of faith in the ability of children, noting, "Kids come into the world smart, and we, as adults, dumb them up."

"Watch how kids play together. You put little kids together and they get along," Epps said. "When do they separate? They learn to dislike different people from adults. They don't come into the world with that attitude."

Epps sees the children of Inkster as an investment, and he believes the community must invest in them.

"If you don't put money in the bank, you can't draw any out. It's the same with kids. If you don't invest in their future, you can't expect to have anything to draw on later," Epps said.

Epps said his greatest joy in helping people, and he gives the credit, "not to myself but to God."

A member of Amity Baptist Church, Epps describes his congregation as "people people" - among the spokes on the wheel of community education.

Honoree James Epps is congratulated on his honor from Michigan Community Newspapers and the Inkster Land Development Company, both for his dedication to education. MCN photo by Joan Dyer-Zinner

Suburban murder probed

By JOAN DYER-ZINNER
MCN Managing Editor

Although I had never read any of Jon Katz' mystery novels, I was intrigued enough by the title of his latest, The Last Housewife, to read it, and then quickly become a fan of Kit Deleew, also known as the Suburban Detective.

The rather offbeat hero of Katz' mystery novels is a private detective, living in a bedroom community in New Jersey who divides his day between his sleuthing and keeping an eye on his two youngsters while his wife pursues her career.

While walking his dog, Deleew meets one of the few full-time housewives in his suburb -- a woman who has dubbed herself as the "Last Housewife." Shortly after, the quiet suburb is rocked by the announcement that the popular woman principal of the middle school has been gunned down and the prime suspect is none other than the Last Housewife.

Deleew signs on as an investigator to prove her innocence, but he soon becomes entangled in a series of threats that place his career and reputation on the line.

The author's knowledge about the inside politics of the educational system is evident from his description of a school board meeting -- "Educational meetings are, for a number of my fellow townspeople, the favored recreational activity. They're cheaper than movies or the theater. And school officials are a handy target, required by law to sit and listen to everybody's hectoring."

BOOK Review

Katz has a keen understanding of the suburbs and its residents as well as the schools and everyday suburban life.

It is into this atmosphere that the Suburban Detective must seek the answers to the question of who shot the principal -- treading lightly so as not to disturb the beauracracy or inadvertently make a politically incorrect move as he investigates allegations of sexual harassment of female students.

Ukrainian egg art taught

By LORI GILLESPIE
MCN Staff Writer

Years ago, Mona Salisbury took a class at the Henry Ford Museum to learn how to make pysanky, Ukrainian Easter eggs. As with many things, Salisbury took what she learned and taught it to her fifth and sixth grade classes at Edgemont Elementary.

Although she is now retired, Salisbury is still teaching what she learned many years ago. She said she generally works with children, but this year she's doing something different. On March 8, Salisbury came to the September Days Senior Center to pass the art on to an older generation.

Pysanky eggs are decorated with very fancy, intricate designs, and no two eggs are exactly alike. The designs contain symbols and colors which have special meanings. Each is designed to communicate special wishes to the person receiving the egg.

Salisbury brought with her some of the eggs she has designed over the years. Of course, she said she could tell her early designs from the eggs she has worked on recently because the lines aren't as straight as they once were.

She told the class not to worry about making mistakes. "No one will know it's a mistake unless you tell them," she said.

The pysanky process includes holding a kitska or stylus over a candle, then pressing it into bees wax before using it to draw the design on the egg. The bees wax will turn black once it dries. The eggs can be dyed and more bees wax can be applied over the dye. After the design is complete, paint thinner is used to remove the wax. The design will be the color the egg was dyed before the wax was applied.

Nature is used to represent different messages. Some of the symbols used in traditional pysanky include flowers, fruits, trees, birds, as well as stars, the sun, spiders, and water.

Special effects add to excitement of 'Beauty, Beast'

By RACHAEL LEWIS
MCN Staff Writer

Beauty and the Beast, a favorite children's tale that has been televised and made into an animated film, now captures the hearts of young and old in its new stage presentation at the Masonic Temple Theatre.

It is a "must see" play, with exciting pyrotechnics, stellar performances by its cast and outstanding costumes and sets -- a spectacular that rates an "11" on a scale of one to 10.

Walt Disney's Beauty is a light-hearted musical in which all of the beloved characters from the animated film come to life with amazing effects.

The play tells the story of Belle, a young woman in a provincial French town, and the Beast, who is really a young prince trapped in a spell placed by an enchantress. If the Beast can learn to love and be loved, the curse will end and he will be transformed to his former self -- but time is running out and if he cannot find love, he and his household will be doomed for all eternity.

Fred Inkley, who played Jean Valjean in the Broadway production of Les Miserables, plays the multi-faceted Beast. He makes the story of the poor tortured soul believable and draws compassion from the audience.

Inkley's costume, which transforms him into a "beast," includes make-up and prosthetics and hair made from both real and synthetic hair -- an outfit which takes three people to help him don.

Kim Huber, who plays the starry-eyed innocent Belle, displays a wonderful singing voice in several solos plus duets and songs with the cast.

Patrick Page who plays the Lumiere is a scene stealer with his hilarious and charming portrayal of the Candlestick. His costume with "candle hands" is one of the most complicated ones in the show.

Nathan Keen, 7, from Beverly Hills, Mich. was cast as Chip for the Detroit run of the show and handles his role well.

The run of the show has been extended through May 26. Tickets are available at the Masonic Temple Box Office and from Ticketmaster.

The special effects were in a word -- awesome.

There were no slow spots in the play which keep its fast pace with rapid scene changes, lights and explosions -- all of which are designed to keep the most avid action adventure fan enthralled.

More than 600 lamps or lighting instruments in the stage design and enough wattage to light a football stadium.

Don't miss the delightful Beauty and the Beast -- is sure to be a long-remembered stage classic.

ALL-AREA

WOMEN'S GYMNASTICS

KATIE GILLES

Junior Katie Gilles currently holds all of the gymnastics records at Canton High School. At the state meet this year, Gilles broke a record she had set two years ago, and took first place in the team all around competition. During the Division I individual competition, Gilles hit her head on the balance beam during the first event. "She's the best gymnast I've ever had," coach John Cunningham.

ZOE YOCKEY

Voted Outstanding Senior Gymnast by the Coaches Association, Salem's Zoe Yockey will compete at the National High School meet coming up. "Zoe is a strong gymnast all around," said coach Pam Yockey. "She's usually very consistent." Zoe was named to the All-Region team, and is an All-American in every event. "She ranks in the top kids in the nation," according to her coach.

SARAH COOMBS

Senior Sarah Coombs finished her last season at Westland John Glenn with top 10 finishes on the floor and the beam at the state meet. "Sarah is very quiet," said coach Debbie Hosein. "She's really determined. Sarah really helps the other girls a lot, telling them what they are doing wrong, and what they need to do to improve."

KIM NOWAK

In the conference final, Canton's Kim Nowak took second in the all-around. Nowak, an All-American also took third in the regionals on the floor exercise, and was fifth in the all-around at the state finals, qualifying her to compete in the state championship. "It's a shame she didn't realize how good she was," coach John Cunningham said of the co-captain. "Her success was exceptional."

BROOKE LARSON

Canton's Brooke Larson finished in the top 20 in two events at the state finals this year, and was named to the All-American team. "She is one of our strong participants on the floor," coach John Cunningham said. "She finished second on the vault at regionals. Brooke is the class clown. She keeps us all laughing."

Canton's Cunningham named gymnastics Coach of the Year

At the beginning of the year, Canton's gymnastics team set their goals.

They wanted to win conference, done; they wanted to win regionals, done; they wanted to win state, they took second place, and the man who took them there, coach John Cunningham has now been chosen as Coach of the Year.

Cunningham, a former gymnast at Alpena High School and the University of Michigan, is slow to take all of the credit for Canton's incredible season. "It's the chemistry," he said. "The girls are focused and dedicated. It makes coaching much easier when you don't have to be the motivator all of the time."

Cunningham has been coaching gymnastics at Canton High School for 18 years. Taking second in the state represents the best finish Canton has ever had in gymnastics. They have finished in third place, three other times.

"This was definitely the best

team I've ever had," Cunningham said. "I've had a lot of best teams, and they keep getting better. This is my 12th All-American team."

When asked to describe the coach, Canton gymnast Katie

Gymnastics Coach of the Year

STEPHANIE THOMPSON

In her first year on the Westland John Glenn gymnastics team, sophomore Stephanie Thompson took eighth place on bars at the state meet. "Stephanie is a hard worker," said coach Debbie Hosein. "She always wants to improve. She came to us from the Michigan Academy, where they taught discipline. She is so strong, but there is always room for improvement."

SHELLEY UNDERWOOD

With a 9.2, Westland John Glenn's Shelley Underwood took first on the balance beam at the state meet. The senior was also ninth all around in Division II. "Shelley is our goofy-girl," said coach Debbie Hosein. "She's always doing or saying something funny. She keeps us laughing. Shelley is a good team motivator."

BRIE WALL

Canton's Brie Wall finished 10th in the state in the individual all-around for Division II. As a senior, Wall has a good shot at being chosen for the Senior National team, and the All-American team. "She is a team leader," coach John Cunningham said of his team's co-captain. "She is probably the most inspired person on the team. Her work ethic is to be admired. She works harder than anyone on the team."

KRISTIN KOSIK

Salem's Kristin Kosik took third in everything, including the all around, in the regionals, and had top 10 finishes in everything at the state meet. Kosik, a junior, will most likely be named to the All-American Elite team this year. Described as a "real dedicated gymnast," by coach Pam Yockey, Kosik was elected to the All-State team by the Michigan Coaches Association.

BROOKE KILBY

Salem junior Brooke Kilby made her first trip to the state meet this year. Placing 24th in the All-Around, coach Pam Yockey describes her as a very strong performer. "She is real strong," Yockey said. "She is a self-motivated child. Brooke spends a lot of time concentrating, perfecting her performance. She won't do a routine unless it is perfect. She really puts a lot of effort into everything she does."

KRISTIE BROADRICK

Although she didn't qualify for the state meet, Westland John Glenn's Kristie Broadrick was probably the most improved member of her team this year. "Her improvement skyrocketed this year," coach Debbie Hosein said. "She's funny, but she is also a hard worker. Kristie was really stubborn at first, but as time went by, she changed."

KATIE BOOGEN

Westland John Glenn junior Katie Boogen helped her team a lot this year. "Katie is my little adult," said coach Debbie Hosein. "I have had some of the nicest, intelligent, adult conversations with her. She helps choreograph the routines. She's like a gymnast and assistant coach in one."

Is Plymouth-Salem the heir-apparent to Glenn's track crown

By TOM MOORADIAN
MCN Staff Writer

Geoff Baker has some very good reasons to smile this season.

With outstanding talent and experienced athletes returning to the Plymouth-Salem track coach's lineup, he may have the team that will be crowned the next conference champ.

Anyway, that's what most coaches in the Western Lakes

Conference apparently believe: Baker and the Rocks are the heir-apparent to Glenn's track & field talent crown.

"That's mean of them," said Baker, with a smile on his face. "Sure, I think we can win it, but..." and the fifth-year coach paused apparently looking to find the appropriate word, "but, if we do, everything must fall in place. And that doesn't always happen."

So, there you have it - keep an eye on Salem. It appears that the Rocks are the ones to catch.

If Salem should falter, and if anyone is going to catch the frontrunners, Baker, Westland John Glenn's Jess Sough and their peers believe it could be Walled Lake Western or even Farmington Hills Harrison.

Harrison has the premier sprinter in the conference in All-State gridder Jason Granger who, along with dominating the dashes, could be the anchor for Harrison's winning speed relay teams.

"Don't ever count out Glenn," stressed Baker. "Yes, they did lose a lot of seniors to graduation, but they have an excellent program over there. And coach Shough does an excellent job. As I see it, we may have an edge, but it will be in a wide-open race."

On Saturday, Salem finished among the top 10 at the prestigious Eastern Michigan University Relays. The EMU meet attracts some of the top prep track stars from the Detroit League along with talent from Indiana, Ohio and Michigan.

Salem finished third with its distance medley relay team as Jason Barylksi, Scott Kingslien, Scott Loewe and Jared Biniecki combined for a 11:02.6.

Biniecki also earned a fifth-place medal for his efforts in the 1,600-meters, touring the distance in 4:29.7.

Baker's 3,200-meter relay team made up of Barylksi, Scott Lowell, Scott Pengelly and Biniecki also reached the finals where it finished in 8:27, good for a sixth-place finish.

Before the spring break, the Rocks will compete in the Michigan State Relays which will be staged Saturday in East Lansing. The Rocks began their bid for a conference title on Tuesday, taking on a capable Livonia Churchill.

Can Plymouth-Salem, Rumberger be super again

By TOM MOORADIAN
MCN Staff Writer

In his rookie year as Plymouth-Salem's baseball coach Dale Rumberger led the Rocks to a 25-8 season.

En route to the Western Lakes Conference, Class A district and regional championships, Rumberger also picked up "Coach of the Year" honors.

Is 1996 another super Salem year?

It would appear so. Rumberger has back most of the bats and arms from that explosive lineup that made 1995 a memorable year for the Rocks and their new coach.

"We have a team filled with ball players who love to play baseball," said Rumberger. "We have the right chemistry and the dedication. This may be another great year for us.

"But, and I know you may not believe this, I look for more balance in our conference this year."

Rumberger said his reasoning is based on the fact that Walled Lake Central, John Glenn and Plymouth-Canton, with the trio of returning letter-winners of Anthony Pastor (pitcher), Kirk Richards (infielder) and Scott Dudley (infielder) and Farmington Hills Harrison also have some outstanding talent returning.

But it would be difficult to top the Rocks.

Salem has retained the pitching services of right-hander Ryan Andrejewski, who won all seven of his games last year, including victories in the district and regional finals. Andrejewski also posted a very impressive 1.11 earned run average in claiming all-conference and All-Area accolades.

Salem has two other outstanding hurlers in senior southpaw Keith Boughner (3-0, ERA 2.01) and junior right-hander Tom Demetsenare (1-1, ERA 2.31) who form the core of what could be the best pitching lineup in recent Salem history.

Also back are left-fielder Kirk Craggs, who batted .301 a year ago; senior right-fielder Dan Heitzmann, (.270) and the coach's son, Ryan Rumberger, who finished with a hefty .355 batting average and also drove in 25 runs in his sophomore year. The 6-0, 195-pound backstop is among the best in Salem's long history.

Kevin Niemiec, whose brothers, Dan, starred for Salem before going on to pitch for New York, and Scott, presently starting for the University of Michigan, is following in his siblings' footsteps.

"Kevin is an outstanding athlete who swings the bat well," Rumberger noted. "He is the best shortstop we have and will be a great one."

Among other Salem standouts are outfielder Alex Ras, Tim Sisler (pitcher-infielder), Justin Hulett (infielder) and Jay Wasalaski, who is a fierce competitor that is seeking to break into the starting pitching rotation.

Salem has a busy week, opening up against Livonia Churchill (April 2), then taking on Taylor Kennedy (April 3). The Rocks will square off against Ypsilanti at home on Tuesday before traveling to Grand Rapids on April 13 to compete in the Grand Rapids Invitational where they take on Traverse City in the first of two games.

Wisdom and wizardry Wayne may have the magic for a title year

By TOM MOORADIAN
MCN Staff Writer

Jim Chronowski swings into his 25th season as head baseball coach at Wayne Memorial with a team he believes could make a bid for the conference championship.

The key word here, fans, is could.

"A lot of things must fall into place if we are to be contenders," said Chronowski. "From where I stand, it looks like Monroe and Taylor Center are the teams to beat."

But the dean of area baseball coaches (only Lincoln Park's Tom Nolan tops the venerable Chronowski's coaching seniority in the conference) says that wisdom and wizardry on the field and off may play their roles in whether Wayne develops into a contender.

"Academic standards come into play and after-school jobs may take their toll of this team," stressed Chronowski. "A player with a failing grade will have to eliminate the grade before he's eligible to compete in that week, and some kids have jobs which will take away from their playing time."

Chronowski says pitching is also suspect.

"We don't have experience on the mound. And, without it, you can forget a winning season."

If you're about to take out the proverbial violin or pass handkerchiefs around to wipe away tears - don't. Past experience has shown, that somehow, someway, Chronowski has been able to whip his Zebras into shape to make a run for the conference and state titles. He's taken at least two of his teams to the Final 4, and some allege that Chronowski won't really retire until he has at least one state championship under his belt.

If this is going to be a Wayne year, Chronowski will need to find some consistent performers - something last year's squad lacked. The Wayne coach has jack-of-all-trades kind of player in Clark Boston who could make the impossible dream come true. Boston's bat and his ability to catch will be key components in the drive for a conference title.

Wayne also has pitcher-catcher John Clendening back, and he should be tough. Teammates Ron King, an infielder-pitcher, and Brant Tajiri, a senior hurler, along with the Thomason twins, both 6-4, form the nucleus of the lineup this year.

Chronowski also has an experienced ball player in junior infielder Jeff Temple, who may see his share of action on the mound, while Kevin Wetmore - whose brothers have starred for Wayne in the past - also is making his debut in the Wayne outfield.

Though practice had been relegated to the gym until last week because of the inclement weather, Wayne has been able to get on out-of-doors to prepare for their opener.

After opening with Thurston Monday, the Zebras travel to rival, John Glenn, today for a twin bill that is scheduled to begin at 11 a.m. On Friday, Wayne also has a double-header with Fordson at the Dearborn-based high school's field.

Then, it will be (re)evaluation time as Chronowski and the Zebras take a break to enjoy their spring vacation. They will return to diamond warfare on April 17 when they clash with Taylor Center, the defending Mega Conference, Red Division champ.

TC and Monroe have been labeled by the conference's pre-season title picks. Monroe, however, has the edge because of the number of returning senior and junior letter-winners.

"As I see it at this point," Chronowski says, "Monroe is going to have a lot to say about who is going to win the title this year."

Last shot

Wayne Memorial's Richard Rashad (4) soars for the block of Southfield Lathrup's Mike Chappell's layup during the Class A semifinal round of the state championships staged last week in East Lansing. Although Wayne didn't make it to the championship round, at least two of Wayne's players have been drafted for The Michigan Community Newspapers' elite All-Area club. Who they are - and the rest of the lineup - will appear here next week. Don't miss this fitting tribute to the area's premier prep basketball players. MCN photo by Werner R. Slocum

Robichaud spikers win SAC volleyball title

Robichaud High School's volleyball team finished first in the Suburban Athletic Conference, with a 10-0 record in the league, 11-3 overall.

"Our program has been rebuilding. This year, we had girls who have been playing on the varsity team," coach Tim Leighton said. "We only lost two girls from last season."

The girls were defeated in a semi-final round in the districts by Thurston High School, 15-3, 15-1.

"They were tough," Leighton said. "We weren't blocking well, and they were hitting the ball hard."

The coach said his team accomplished two of the goals set at the beginning of the season. "One goal was to finish undefeated in the league, it had never happened before," he said. "And the last time Robichaud won the league was in 1985."

Coach

Gilles said he is hard to describe. Fellow teammate Kim Nowak agreed, but said, "He shares the same emotions as us. If we're excited, he's excited.

If we're nervous, he's nervous."

Cunningham said his primary goal as a coach is, "To make sure the girls have fun while they are practicing, and that they perform to the best of their ability. The three weeks leading up to the state meet, I had the most relaxed, confident practices I've ever had with a team."

The Coach of the Year said competition at the state meet was tough, with most teams made up largely of girls from Division I (with club experience). Canton has two Division I girls, Holland, the team which took first overall, has seven. "When people ask me how we did at state, I say 'we won. Oh, no, I mean we came in second.' The competition was tough, so it feels like we won."

When asked why he coaches, Cunningham replies, "Because it's fun. In high school sports, there's a constant influx of kids. You're always searching for the chemistry to get the best performance from each girl."
